Speech-Language Pathologist

Hello! My name is Ayana Webb, and I have more than 20 years of experience helping children and families build strong communication skills. I believe every child deserves the opportunity to communicate with confidence, and parents are a child's first and most important teachers. My goal is to provide simple, practical strategies that support speech, language, learning, and early literacy from the very beginning.

How I Can Support You

- Answer questions about speech and language development from infancy through preschool.
- Share tips to encourage talking through everyday routines, play, singing, and reading.
- Help build strong early language and pre-literacy skills.
- Discuss ways to prevent communication difficulties by recognizing early signs.
- Help you know when a speech and language evaluation may be helpful.

Did You Know?

- By about 12 months, many babies begin using simple words like 'mama' or 'dada' and communicate with gestures such as pointing or waving.
- By about 2 years, many toddlers are putting two words together ("more milk," "mommy up").
- Reading, talking, singing, and playing together every day are among the best ways to support language development.
- You don't have to wait for a concern to ask questions. Early guidance can make a big difference.

Questions are always welcome!

I look forward to partnering with you as you help your child build a strong foundation for communication, learning, and lifelong success.
